

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

FOREWORD

Owing to the difficulty in obtaining the information given herein, the compiler of this brief pamphlet is aware that inaccuracies must have occurred, although it is believed that in the main it is substantially correct.

He has so far been unable to secure data regarding the first five children of the Rev. George Gillmore other than that here given.

A much more detailed account of the life and travels of the Rev George Gillmore may be found in the 1913 volume of the "Transactions of the Royal Society of Canada," of Ottawa, under the title of "The Vicissitudes of a Loyalist Clergyman."

A list of the sources of information for that account (and to a slightly more limited degree for this account), is appended in the back of this pamphlet.

Grateful acknowledgement is made to all who loaned their aid in compiling the following data. Particular thanks are due to the Rev. Dr. A. W. H. Eaton, of Kings County, Nova Scotia and Boston, Massachusetts, for valuable assistance and advice.

OF THE

In brief, and according to the best information at hand, the Rev. George Gillmore was born in 1720 in County Antrim, Ulster, Ireland, married in Ireland a Miss Allen, studied at the University of Edinburgh in 1762-63, emigrated to America with his wife and family in 1769 and landed safely at Philadelphia on September 9th.

Later he settled in Voluntown, Connecticut, from where he and his family were forced to flee during the Revolution, having been denounced by Governor Turnbull as a Tory.

From there he went to New York State and thence to Canada. From Canada he found his way to Nova Scotia, settling in Windsor in 1785. Six years later, 1791, he removed with his family to Horton. Here he lived and labored until his death some twenty years later, on September 30, 1811, at the age of 91.

Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." He married at Horton 11 Feb. 1796, Sarah Hamilton, born at Horton 24 March 1769, and Horton Town Book says died there 11 Sept. 1848, but the inscription on her tombstone recites: "In memory of Sarah, wife of Samuel Gillmore, who died 14 June 1848 at 79. To the Honorable, the Commissioners, appointed by Act of Parliament for enquiring into the losses and services of the American Loyalists.

The Memorial of Rev. George Gillmore humbly sheweth,

Your Memorialist being a member of the Kirk of Scotland, was settled in a town called Voluntown in Connecticut Government, with a small congregation of People, from whom he received a comfortable subsistence; and had a farm, rent free, being their property, to subsist himself, his wife and his children with whom he lived in love and amity till the late unnatural war contest broke out as a wasting and consuming fire, which burnt and almost razed the generous human and benevolent feelings of kindness, humanity and even Christianity which ought always to possess our breasts

My congregation withdrew their personal attendance and even refused to have their children baptized by me, as they judged me to be inimical to the good cause of Liberty, (as they called it). My subsistence took its departure with my hearers, and of course, as I could not from principle and according to my ordination oath deny my Allegiance to my gracious Sovereign, not choosing to adopt the contrary mood of cursing the King, and blessing their congress. Refusing to pipe the popular tune of Tumult, Faction, Sedition and Rebellion, I was judged unworthy to share in the privileges of another (Lease) of community. My people became Landlords demanding rent from me for the farm your memorialist occupied which before he provisioned and improved by their beneficence.

Thus he was reduced to an extremity indeed. Hated by Populace, despised by friends. To dig; — His figure is not of a robust kind to effect much by this employ of life. To beg; — He was ashamed, and what to do in his condition and under such circumstances, your honours, he humbly presumes will only determine. I finally demitted preaching, and the exercise of ministerial functions, and betook myself to the business of agriculture to procure himself, his wife and six children, a scanty subsistence. His wife and children were not wanting in pursuing the laudable ways of industry according to their ability to help, but found all hardly sufficient to keep matter and immatter in amity together. He pursued this employ of life for one year. Your memorialist hopes he shall never be forced to affirm that he had more property than what in reality was, nor deny what kind Providence hath made him the possessor and owner of. To do the former is to go aside from the truth, and to do the latter is injustice and ingratitude. As to landed property, your memorialist had none in Voluntoon, as to pecunary, he had some, which unluckily happened to be let out to people, who were kind and generous enough to embrace the favorable opportunity of the times to pay him his hard money with the fraudulent paper currency. Had a stock of cattle but was obliged to sell them to help us to keep life.

The fire of tumult drove him from his family out of Voluntoon into York Government to look up a place of residence for himself and poor family. At last he procured a small farm in a place called Noble Town, where he resided with his family a few years in low circumstances. Preaching sometimes to the people of said town, and keeping a school, but bearing the name of Tory, got very little by both callings. At last your memorialist through property and popular odium, was forced to leave his earthly all, his wife and children, and fly into Canada Country. He had a long and tedious journey through a vast dreary wilderness ere he arrived at St. John's in A. D. 1782. There he wintered with Major Rogers and shared in the King's Rations as other Loyalists. The summer ensuing A. D. 1783 he went to Qubeck, and Memorialized his excellency Gen. Haldimand to take under his serious consideration your memorialists case as another poor persecuted Loyalist, who has fled for refuge into Canada to take protection under the British Flag, he accordingly was graciously pleased to enrol him on the list of Pensioners, and received one pension, and against the next payment was cut off with the rest of Pensions agreeable to his Majesty's special instructions.

Your memorialist sent for his wife and family the Fall following and arrived safe in St. Johns in March ensuing. Have suffered some hardships in crossing Lake Champlain in so cold a season of the year. He went to Qubeck the Spring following, and met with great kindness from friends, and shared largely in His Majesty's Royal Bounty, both as to clothing and Rations. Before his Excellency departed from Qubeck Nov. last year, your memorialist petitioned him for a certificate and recommendation as a minister and Loyalist for Nova Scotia, where he hoped to obtain a living in the line of a minister now in the decline of life ; though no certainty was settled on him by Government, my certificate was granted, signed by his Excellency's command. Last Spring, His Honor Col. Hope, Commandant of His Majesty's Garrison of Qubeck procured us a passage for Halifax, at the expense of Government, and supplied us with plenty of Rations for the passage. We all safe arrived at Halifax last July. Here we spent the Summer and were well treated by his Excellency and His Majesty's command and others. Your memorialist with family took our departure to Windsor, the place of our residence at present till something else offers, and where he by an invitation of a few of the profession of the Kirk continues to preach, in whose free will offerings we Preachers of the Kirk have to depend. A very fleeting certainty indeed in this cold quarter of the Globe.

By these accounts of your memorialists sufferings, he is persuaded, your honours will be able to scrutinize the genuineness thereof and judge concerning him according to Right. Thus he hath spent a number of the years of his life, in wandering, his days in poverty, in hunger nakedness and cold, and all for his Loyalty.

As to an account of my losses, officially considered, I shall neither add nor diminish from what I have already given in, when at Sorrell in the year 1783, the amount of which was $700. N. Y. currency from the beginning of the late unnatural contest in the colonies to the then date (exclusive of his hard money let out, cattle lost, loss of his time and others in journeying, and removing himself and family to different parts of the land).

The above account was declared before a Notary Public at Sorrell, signed and sealed by him. The whole of what he said in favor of the above account he wrote in French and inclosed it with the rest in a packet which was sent to Montreal and from thence to Albany and to New York to be put on board the Packet. Your memorialist conscious to himself of the truth of what he hath related above is confident that he hath not given in a more (whatever less) claim than what is according to a very moderate calculation, considering his circumstances. He rather chooses to suffer disadvantages to himself and family connection than injure the Public by making an enormous demand on the property of the Public contrary to the law of Justice.

Your memorialist therefor submits the whole to your humane and benevolent feelings to make such allowance as in your wisdom you shall judge me worthy of, and your memorialist as in duty bound shall ever pray.

NOTE. The Rev. George Gillmore was in London in 1788 and appeared before the Commissioners, who "decided to pay him £20 in full and £20 more on his return to Nova Scotia."

NOTES.

The system used in arranging the foregoing data is that employed by the New England Historic and Genealogical Society of Boston, and will be readily understood. For instance:— It will be noted that there is a small figure 1 at the right of the Rev. George Gillmore's name on the first page; also at the right of his first child, Mary, there is a small figure 2. These denote the generations of the various members of the family. Thus, on page 4, it will be seen that John Terry Gillmore is of the 3rd generation, being the son of George of the 2nd generation, who was the son of the Rev. George.

There were Gillmores in the United States long before the Rev. George came over, who settled in New Hampshire where the family is now quite numerous. For data on this branch see "History of Windham, N. H.", by Morrison.

It should be noted that Mrs. Gillmore, the wife of the Rev. George Gillmore, was living in May 1803, as appears from a letter written at that time by Mr. Gillmore to one of his daughters.

The name "Gillmore" has been spelled both GILMORE and GILLMORE by the later generations, with the former predominating. The latter is, however, the way that the Rev. George Gillmore and all his children spelled it, and is, according to Lower's "Patronymica Britannica" (pages 129 and 416) the more proper way. Gillmore (also written Gilmer, Gilmore, Gilmour) is derived from the Gaelic GILLE-MOHR, meaning "great servant" or armor-bearer of a Highland Chief, and he was probably selected for his size and strength. "Gill" means servant, and in the early ages of Christianity in Scotland it was ordinary for religious persons to designate themselves as servants of Christ or some Saint; whence we have:—

Gilchrist	—	Servant of Christ
Gilpatric	—	" " St. Patrick
Gillespie	—	" " the Bishop
Gilroy	—	" " the King

Hence:—

Gillmore — Servant of a Chief.
